

ENVIRONMENTAL POLICY

LANGA INDUSTRIAL

As a company dedicated to the design, manufacture, maintenance, repair and sale of hydraulic, electrical and mechanical systems, ground support equipment for aircraft and special vehicles, we want to contribute to sustainable development, and for this reason we have developed and incorporated an Environmental Management System based on the requirements of ISO 14001: 2015.

LANGA INDUSTRIAL is aware that, in achieving its economic objectives, the company should not only pursue its own profit but also consider the impact of its activity on the environment. This has led to the establishment of the following principles or commitments:

- The protection of the Environment as a determining factor in the development of our activity, therefore we are committed to the prevention of pollution.
- The Management is committed to reduce the production of waste by raising staff awareness and providing them with the necessary means to achieve this.
- Recognizing the importance of environmental protection for other sectors related to the activity, a documentation has been prepared to inform about the situation of LANGA INDUSTRIAL regarding environmental protection, as well as to encourage contractors and suppliers of the Organization to apply environmental management standards.
- Continuous improvement is established as a fundamental principle of action, giving preference to preventive measures over corrective ones.

All employees are responsible for the protection of the environment, so LANGA INDUSTRIAL will take care of their awareness and training in environmental matters and the Environmental Management System.

- The active participation of LANGA INDUSTRIAL's staff in the Environmental Management System will be encouraged, and special attention will be paid to the suggestions made in this regard.

For the development of the environmental policy, the Management will provide the necessary means, as well as a periodical information of the established objectives for the knowledge of the staff of the organization.

- The management will raise staff awareness of the need to reduce the energy consumption of the installations, as well as actively encouraging staff participation in the research and development of systems that will lead to the reduction of energy consumption.

The Management of LANGA INDUSTRIAL is committed to complying with current environmental legislation and regulations, which are applicable due to its activity, product, and geographical location, as well as other requirements subscribed to by the organization.

The Environmental Policy of the Organization is available to all the public and it is communicated to all the people who work in LANGA INDUSTRIAL or on behalf of it. These commitments are updated periodically during the revisions of the system by the Management.
